• Gray Administration committed to supporting development community to revitalize business corridors and residential neighborhoods alike.

• Workforce incentives available to developers and contractors for hiring DC residents.
District of Columbia Development & Employment

- Prior to this Administration, economic development and job creation projects were essentially frozen. Now, just 11 months into the Gray Administration, several major projects are under construction representing $1.9 billion in investment in the District that will produce 3,500 construction jobs and, when completed, 5,300 permanent jobs.
- By 2015, the District is on track to leverage $11B in public/private investment that will create more than 56,000 construction jobs and more than 50,000 permanent jobs.*

Short Term Initiatives:

Jobs: Pilot Workforce Incentive Program (WIP) Expanded to All DGS Projects

The goal of the 2011 summer pilot WIP was to meet or exceed having 35 percent or more of the hours worked on a project be performed by District residents. Achieved nearly 50 percent of hours worked by DC residents.

WIP is paid for by a small percentage of contingency funds within each project. WIP incentivizes contractors and subcontractors to increase hiring of District residents by:

• Providing the general contractor an incentive of up to 5 percent of its fee for achieving District-resident hiring targets established as part of its Guaranteed Maximum Price (GMP) for the project; and

• Providing subcontractors an incentive payment equal to 10 percent of payrolls that are paid to District residents on the project.
